

Project notes:

- I will need to submit the github for both of these for a competition that I am entering, so I will need to have a fully built out github with access
- To have success, I need the artist to be able to mint an NFT, and I need 20 users to be able to acquire the NFT
- I'll need to show proof of the above in order to enter the competition and get approval for the project
  - Without success on the above, the project is not complete

Prototype description - there are two components:

- (1) A simple website that allows:
- Artist to mint an MP3 as an NFT on NEAR
  - Artist needs to be able to just upload the MP3, submit a name, a cover photo, and description, how many NFTs to mint
  - Draft mock (does not need to be exactly like this, just a draft for inspiration; add a "Powered by NEAR" with a NEAR logo at the bottom of every page that you make)

Democratizing web3 for musicians and their fans

- (2) A simple website that allows:

- Anybody to see a simple storefront
- After the NFT from step 1 is minted, the user should be able to click on that NFT in the storefront
  - That should take them to a page that explains the project (see notes here)
  - See below for description of what to put on the project description page
  - It also needs to have a button for the user to click “get NFT” and connect their NEAR wallet and then get the NFT (the users will be new to NEAR, so add some super simple instructions for how to get a Wallet)
  - Artist needs to be able to get paid out (need infrastructure for the artist to get paid out in paypal)

Note: Can we make it so that the user can purchase with USD rather than NEAR? And can we make the price as low as possible?

- Publicly accessible fan accounts.
  - We will need to build a way for fans to share their accounts on socials - e.g., show that they have made a purchase by posting or promoting in a publicly viewable way.

Notes on what to include in the project page for website (2) in the above

About the NFT:

“City of Solitude” is the opening song from a groundbreaking new musical being developed about a dystopian future in NYC, investigating themes of love and loneliness.

This musical is being developed in a revolutionary way - allowing fans to be a part of the journey. By acquiring this NFT, you’ll have a sneak preview of the opening song, and you’ll be directly supporting the show’s development. You’ll get a front row seat to the process as we head into our first workshops and productions here in NYC.

About the artist:

“City of Solitude” is being created by an artistic team working under a pseudonym of “The Dystopians” for this project. They have songwriting experience for musical theatre and are excited to bring a unique blend of tech and music experience to this project.
